Canadian Who's Who

"Canadian Who's Who is a biographical directory of the "country's most noteworthy citizens, researching and presenting the details of their lives and careers." The 50th edition of this resource features entries for 10,000 noted individuals and information presented includes: date and place of birth, education, family (names of parents and children), educational background, career information, honors, publications, and memberships plus contact information and social media and websites, where applicable. Biographies are listed in alphabetical order and, in addition, there is a separate directory "In Memoriam" of recently deceased individuals. An abbreviations listing is provided and includes those relating to academic degrees, honors and awards, job titles, and associations. Among those included are heads of state, lawyers, politicians, actors, athletes, scientists, and musicians. Among notables featured are: Prime Minister Justin Trudeau, William Shatner, Christopher Plummer, Celine Dion, Anna Paquin, Bobby Orr, Wayne Gretzky, Arthur B. McDonald, Alice Munro, Margaret Atwood, and Bryan Adams. Editors also "invite prominent individuals to complete questionnaires from which new biographies are created." Information is based on "reliable sources of information" from government, business, academia, associations, and media outlets. Canadian Who's Who is highly recommended to academic and larger public and research libraries. It is both a source for quick reference and a place to begin research on a specific person."
